They came directly from the morth and are delighted with the balmy spring days they find here. While in the north they were confronted with the snows and cold, and here the hermometer stands at 70. The trees, crass and flowers all in bloom shows julte a change. President Kimball visited Mesa ten ears ago and was at that time impressed with the great future of this country. He is also acquainted with about forty of the young men of Mesa who labored under his presidency in the Southern States' missions.
